Near East Relief Appeals Made to Citizens Here

Speakers Tell of Conditions Among Children Whose Lives May Depend on Success of Campaign for Funds
Now Under Way—First Appeal in Over Three Years.

The Near East Relief construction program was represented in many of the local churches Sunday. In the First Baptist church, Howard L. Montgomery, a member of the New York State bar, spoke at length at the morning service from the business man's viewpoint. He spoke of the thousands—tens of thousands—of boys and girls at the ages of 18 and 16 who have been saved and placed out in the world self-supporting. He also spoke of the conditions as they exist today in the camps in Greece since the transfer of the Christians from Turkey a year ago. He made it plain that it was a good business proposition and the work would only need the aid of the Kingston people a short while longer. This church is reported as having given the most generous contribu-

At the Fair Street Church, Irving T. Gumb, New York state director of the organization, spoke of the work as he saw it on the field a short while ago. - Everyone was greatly expressed for the speaker was able to picture the conditions very clearly to his congregation.

23,000 Children In Barracks.

The Rev. J. Willbur Tetley of the St. James Methodist Church had as his speaker Dr. A. C. McCrea, one of the nationally known speakers of the evangelists. Dr. McCrea was organization. Dr. McCrea gave a very graphic story of the work among the children as he saw it a while ago. He dwelt on the work in the Caucasus Mountains where at one time the organization had 23,000 children living in the Russian barracks, without a known relative in the world. Dr. McCrea spoke of how the children loved the American flag which protected them so well and so long. He also went into detail about the trades the organzation was teaching the children, 44 different trades to make these children self supporting.

Miss Francis Witte, a graduate nurse, spoke to the congregation at the Wurts Street Baptist Church and told of her experiences as she found them in the early days. Miss Witte went out during the pioneer days of the organization and is still speaking and raising funds to carry on the work she helped start in 1920. Miss Witte also spoke at the Franklin Street A. M. E. Zion Church at night.

Hearty response at Trinity.

Major George Weston, an insurance man and banker from New York, who saw service on the other side during the war and then went into the Near East with the Red Cross, received a most gracious welcome from both pastor and people of the Trinity Methodist Church. The financial response from this church was most gratifying and the major reason he took his congregation right into the Near East and almost met personally the kiddies he worked for and with.

Howard L. Montgomery also spoke the First Reformed Church in the evening. Although the congregation was rather small, everyone seemed interested in his story.

At the First Presbyterian Church, Mr. Putnam Cady showed slides of his work in the Near East as he gave his last summer. As their speak-they had Miss Martha F. MacNeill, who went out with the organization on the very first ship going into that part of the world two months after the war ended. Miss MacNeill, giving up her career at the Metropolitan Opera House in

New York, is carrying on the campaign in Kingston. She spoke of the hundreds of thousands, in fact over a million Christians in the Near East today who were alive because the American people sent workers and money. The speaker spoke of the hardships during the early days

When they traveled seven days in freight cars, lying on a siding at night because of the bandits in the mountains, going into the interior of Turkey to help save the remnant of the oldest Christian nation in the world—Armenia.

Story of the Wishing Stone.
She gave many little stories of the children in the early days eating grass, leaves, watermelon seeds and a fact anything to keep them alive, but one story that stuck in the hearers' minds was most impressive and everyone in Kingston could have heard it they would be willing to do their utmost towards making Kingston over the top and take care of at least 50 children for one year at the small cost of $100 each. The story was this: When a group of American tourists were visiting the thousands up the Caucasus Mountains, they met three small boys, all under 12 years of age, standing before the old traditional wishing stone in the Near East. They had walked two days and two nights in their bare feet to come to the old stone for their needed something badly. One in the party went over and spoke to the children and asked them what they wanted and wished for and the speaker threw out a challenge to the congregation to show her a child who could match these children in their needs. One boy when asked said

The second boy said: "I wish I could find the Turk who killed my mother."

The third boy, absolutely naked

Honey Producers Elect Officers

At the annual meeting of the Ulster County Honey Producers Co-operative Association, Incorporated, held on Saturday, November 21, at the Court House, Kingston, C. S. Howe of Kingston, N. Y., was unanimously elected to succeed himself as president. Henry DuBois, New Paltz, was elected vice president to succeed A. P. Snyder, whose former residence was Kingston, N. Y. Mr. Snyder was one of Ulster county's largest honey producers. He was well-known among bee-keepers and had many friends throughout the county, who wish him success and happiness in his future home at St. Petersburg, Florida. Charles S. Freer, Kerhonkson, was elected to succeed himself as secretary and treasurer.

The board of directors are: Henry Rose, P. D. P. Wheeler, H. L. Jenkinson, George A. Link, Willis Myers and James J. Mann were elected to succeed C. S. Howe and A. P. Snyder. C. S. Howe was elected delegate to the annual meeting of the Empire State Federation of Beekeepers' Co-operative Associations, Inc., which will be held at the Joseph Stocum College of Agriculture, Syracuse University in the city of Syracuse, N. Y., on December 5, 9 and 10.

It was voted by those present, that beginning with the February issue, the members, that wish to receive it, will have to pay 60 per year in advance for the Beekeeping News of the State of New York, which they have been receiving free of charge for the past year. It was also voted that all delinquent members must pay $1.00 for reinstatement and $1.00 membership dues to become a member in good standing.

Nutty Natural History

By HUGH HUTTON.

THE TANGERIAN TOOTLEBUG.

During the summer months the tootlebug spends most of the day gormandizing on the young tangerines among the orange groves of northern Morocco, but along towards fall acquires a most unholly craving for Spanish omelet. The advent of hordes of tootlebugs into the communities last year was the chief cause of the Spanish debacle; the Riffs only helped. The name is a misnomer, for the creature neither tootles nor toots, but some think he looks as if he might.

A half walnut-shell forms the back and the head is a filbert with clove horns. The feet, made of cloves and split lima beans, must be placed just right to balance the beast, along with the toothpick and raisin tail. The different parts are stuck together with chewing gum. ### PINE HILL

Pine Hill, Dec. 1.—Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Smith expect to leave town next Saturday for Georgia, where they will remain during the winter.

David Funk has the frame up for the new thirty-room addition to "Funkfest." It will make a fine improvement to the appearance of the place when completed.

James Smith has gone to New Jersey for the winter, where he has secured employment.

Harry France has a number of men employed getting out wood on the Clifford lot, above the depot. There is a good market for wood in this section at present, owing to the scarcity of coal.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Robbins of New York spent the week end in town, guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Rodmond.

Miss Mary Talbot, teacher of the primary department of our village school spent Thanksgiving with her parents at Poughkeepsie.

C. H. Griffin has been spending a few days in New York.

Harold Eignor has commenced the foundation for a bungalow on his lot in the rear of Mrs. E. J. Bertrand's property, on Elm street.

R. D. Hulbert has been ill for the past week. He is attended by Dr. Champlin of Fleischmanns.

Sylvanus Townsend and wife of this village spent Thanksgiving day with Mrs. Townsend's brother, Dr. W. H. Warren, at Malden.

Mr. Gold, the Fleischmanns planter, has the contract to do the plumbing work in the Hotel Wellington building.

Lillian Persons, who is employed in New York city has been spending a few days in town with her parents.

Mrs. E. J. Rodmond is visiting friends at Orono.

Mr. and Mrs. Walton Fryman were Kingston visitors on Monday. H. W. Meyer made an automobile trip to Burlington, N. J., last Friday.

YOUR Last Name

IS IT BURNS?

IN THE case of Robert Burns, the great poet of Scotland, this name was not anciently spelled as it is now. Possibly in other cases the same is true. Robert Burns was the eldest son of a small farmer named William Burness belonging to an old though humble family of Kincardineshire, Scotland. Burness is said with Burniss to be derived from Burnhouse, and to have had the significance originally of "at the Burn house."

Other Burnesses of distinction are John Burns, the well-known English labor leader, and William Wallace Burns, famous Civil war officer with the Union army.

REDWOOD—This name is a little misleading at first. It does not have the significance of the syllables red and wood in the present sense, but makes use of red in the sense of "rid," meaning to clear. Thus "redwood" means a clearing in the wood and the name was probably first given to some one who lived in such a clearing.

The first Redwood in this country was Abraham Redwood, who was born on the Island of Antigua, in 1720, and was educated in Philadelphia, with due regard to his immense fortune and expectations. He married in Newport, R. I., before he was twenty and lived there until he died at the age of eighty. He is remembered as the first benefactor of the library in Newport.

One of Abraham Redwood's daughters was a great beauty in her day and it is said that when sailors stepped ashore at Newport "fresh from the beauties of the world," and saw her passing in the street they involuntarily removed their hats in homage. (© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

WHO SAID

"The truest self-respect is not to think of self."

IT WAS natural that Henry Ward Beecher, author of the words quoted, should take an uncompromising stand for what he felt to be right in the great moral issues of the day, for Beecher was a direct descendant of Puritan stock which sacrificed all personal matters to the practicing of its professed creed.

Beecher was the son of Lyman Beecher, a famous American clergyman, and a sister of Harriet Beecher Stowe, famous in American literary annals as the author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Henry Ward was born in Litchfield, Conn., June 24, 1813, and graduated from Amherst college in 1834, following up his college work with a course in Lane Theological seminary, near Cincinnati, Ohio. After graduation he began his clerical duties as pastor of a church in Lawrenceburg, Ind. In 1839 he was called to a prominent church in Indianapolis.

As preacher, Beecher achieved his greatest renown as pastor of the Plymouth Congregational church in Brooklyn, N. Y. Here he occupied the pulpit from 1847 until his death, March 8, 1887.

Supplementing his work as a clergyman, Beecher was prominent as a journalist. He was one of the founders of the Independent and of the Christian Union (now known as the Outlook.) Beecher was also known throughout the nation as an antislavery campaigner.—Wayne D. McMurray. (© by George Matthew Adams.)

Among the NOTABLES

THEOPHILE GAUTIER

GAUTIER was one of the great French novelists, ranking with Balzac and using that same general style of writing, without, probably, being as great as Balzac.

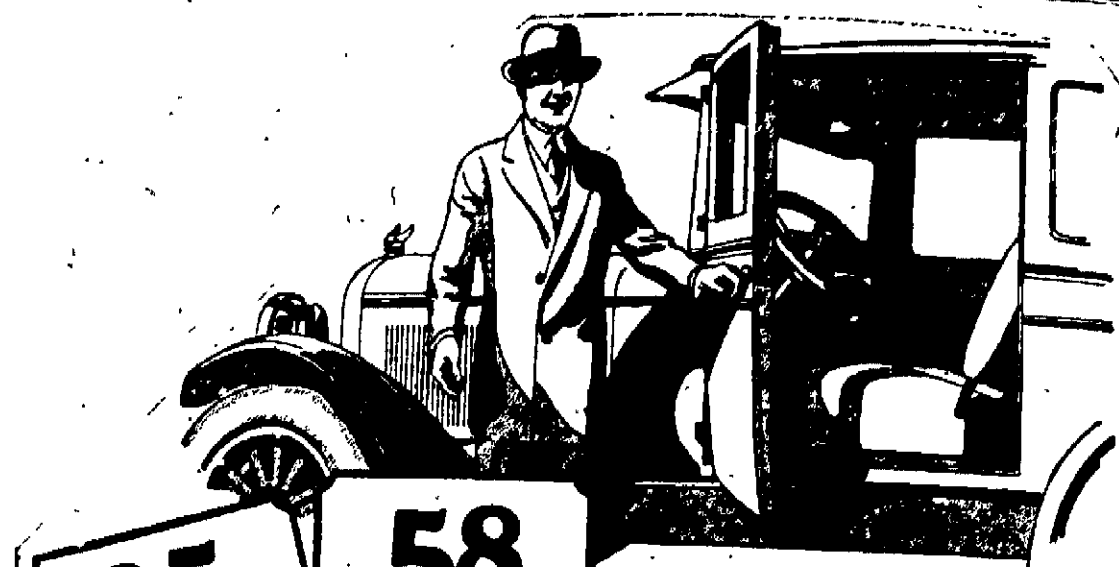

Gautier was born at Fribourg, August 31, 1811, and went to Paris to complete his education. His great interest then was old French literature, and he speedily developed a remarkable style. At eighteen his essays were noted for their wonderful phraseology. He joined a romantic school of thinkers, students, embryo philosophers, artists, writers, people who were, or thought they were, ahead of the mentality of their time. Much of this took expression in wearing flaming red neckties and long waving hair, and in dancing contemptuously about the bust of Racine.

Starting as a poet, he showed a great deal of ability, though also a wildly extravagant style. In some way, then, he was tempted to turn to prose, and here he made his reputation. "Mademoiselle de Maupin," though hailed as a great novel, was too outspoken even for the French, and some attempts were made to suppress it. A short story, "La Mort Amoureuse," has been called a perfect gem of literature.

Gautier was what is called a "bureau" man; he had no interest in politics, morals or religion; his one great passion was the study of people and the working of their minds. He died in Paris in 1882. (© by George Matthew Adams.)

Latest Oil Fraud Based on Indians

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Dec. 1.—Crooked stock promoters have evolved an entirely new scheme, one so cleverly devised that only an expert can penetrate the "honest bulwark" they have erected. This scheme is made public by the Bureau for Investigation of Financial Frauds, New York city.

Indian oil lands are the oil, offered gullible and wise investors alike. The United States Government has ruled that the Indian owner of oil lands must receive a royalty of at least one-eighth when the big companies develop his land.

Clever brokers have seized upon the idea of using the names of such oil companies as the Standard Oil or the Sinclair to sell oil promotion stock. They buy from the Indian as little as a one-hundredth interest in his royalties and then form a million dollar company. This means that the Indian's property on the basis of their incorporation would be worth $100,000,000.

The brokers then go to the investor and offer him a chance to buy in an "oil royalties company" backed up by land upon which the world's greatest concern is developing.

Do they buy? One man purchased more than one hundred thousand shares worth of such stock.

FACTORY EMPLOYING 4,500 TEXTILE WORKERS CLOSES

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Dundee, Maine, Dec. 1.—The Pepperell Manufacturing Company employing 4,500 textile workers, the principal industry here, was shut down today for an indefinite period following a week's trial of the multiple weaving system.

The weavers, who agreed to try out the system, were given to understand that they would have to run but 18 looms but some have been running 22.

Following a meeting of the weavers a walkout began and Agent Howard R. Whitehead immediately announced an indefinite shut down.

Cape Coat of English Type for College Girl

The cape coat, jaunty and graceful, has captivated the fancy of the college girl. There are back-apes, wrap-around capes, and many others to choose from. The model is a sport mixture with collar of light fur, and is quite English.

Color Plays Part in Chic Sports Ensemble

The chic of these sports ensembles lies in their choice of rough surfaced but supple woolen, among which is a good deal of kasha tweed, their extremely trim lines having a coat of contrasting material lined to match the dress. Color also plays an important role, for some charming tonalities of soft hols du rose or mottled blue, old rose and light amethyst are used, as well as more utilitarian beiges.

The vogue for leather is exploited in slim leather coats lined in kasha of lighter shade, to match a kasha dress beneath. An especially attractive model of this sort uses a fairly dark china blue for the leather coat, and a lighter, almost pastel blue kasha for lining and dress.

A number of the jumper frocks are belted, and others suggest a higher waistline by decoration, such as a dark asymmetrical skirt and coat, with long and jumper in mauve, the jumper bordered in a broad band of the darker shade, which seems to continue the skirt to a higher line.

Many of the jumper skirts are full, although the coat that accompanies them is straight. Wider hemline is achieved by cutting the material on the bias, making it fall in soft ripple fitness.

It seems hardly necessary to repeat wool jersey when speaking of sports wear, for it has received endorsement from so many houses. The youthful house of Chanel is among them, showing the simple wearable sports type jumper frocks of wool jersey, kasha or woolen mixtures. A number of the jersey ones are in bright green, but even black is used. The dresses, as already mentioned, are excessively simple in line, and rely upon detail for individuality, these details being very charming, albeit discreet. A black jumper frock cut with V neckline has a small applique motif of rose color placed just at the point of the V. Another jumper is trimmed at neck and cuffs by three little flat tailored bows.

Gorgeous Colors Lead for Fall and Winter

Rich, gorgeous colors are the predominant note in every article of apparel for fall and winter wear. Brilliant reds, intense purples, rich yellows, vivid greens and warm browns are the predominant shades. The reds range from the most brilliant tones to the rich burgundy. The new reds are "rubylike" and "dramatic red."

The purples are displayed under the names of poney and fuchsia, ranging from a rose lavender to a purple almost black in its intensity; yellows, from gold to deep orange; greens, from the vivid greenness peculiar to the second growth of green summer plants to the richness of evergreens; browns, from light to the warm nut tones of autumn.

Golden pheasant is described as a richly toned tan of Indian summer, the color of the plumage of wild game—a color dipped in gold with the sheen of smooth feathers.

Harvard green is described as a deep green of the winter sea reflecting the blue of the sky.

Granum pink is termed a brilliant flower shade vibrating with sunlight—a color of beautiful caplets.

For the Schoolgirl

In the collections of several designers of schoolgirl clothes before frocks have a most conspicuous place. Many are fashioned of the new light-weight twill cloths in navy blue, which after a season or two of oblation has been brought back into the mode. Combined with touches of old rose or French blue they are distinctly youthful, but possess the essential chic which even the twelve-year-old demands in her clothes.

Identifying Artists

One way of proving the identity of a canvas is by the examination of the brush strokes. As one art critic has said: "The brush strokes of a painter are as individual as the handwriting of a writer."

Davis Again Raps Kip Rhinelander

By Telegram to The Freeman.
White Plains, N. Y., Dec. 1.—"No man has the right to hide behind the smoke screen of a long family history," shouted Lee Parsons Davis, counsel for Alice Jones Rhinelander, pursuing his accusation to the jury today in the closing chapter of the marriage annulment suit brought by Leonard Kip Rhinelander against his quondam bride on the ground she concealed her negro origin from him.

Davis dramatically contrasted the surroundings of Young Rhinelander, of the New York Rhinelanders, and Alice Jones, "of an humble and poor parentage," a servant and the daughter of an orphan.

Davis sought to show that Alice could not have led Leonard into their relationship against his will.

Alice is a housemaid, a servant, the daughter of servants, deprived of all family and poor parentage," Davis charged. "Rhinelander is the product of an old money family, a line 24 years old. He is educated, cultured and travelled the world over. These facts make up the difference in race between these two young people."

After reviewing the testimony bearing on Leonard's mentality, Davis read from a letter Leonard wrote Alice on October 2, 1921:

"How dare any man after he's 'sold a girl, come here and expose her to the world? Is that manly?" Davis declared.

A luncheon recess then was declared.

The report states that the latest government sought a settlement from Great Britain on the basis of the Washington settlement but was refused.

Will Sell Hudson Navigation Co.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Dec. 1.—A decree ordering the sale of the entire property of the Hudson Navigation Company, formerly controlled by Charles W. Hudson, and operated under a Federal receivership for the last five years, was handed down here this afternoon by Federal Judge John C. Kane.

The decree, however, contains a provision that none of the property shall be liquidated until six weeks from the time of entering the decree. Another stipulation ordered by the court provides that if within 30 days the stockholders can present a reorganization plan approved by substantial banking interests the sale will be further adjourned to permit the stockholders plan to be tried.

The property of the company included four big passenger steamships, a North River port and a $3,000,000 and 100,000 shares of Hudson Tows, N. Y.

At the time the company went into the hands of a receiver in 1920, the liabilities were listed as $4,250,000 and assets at $7,500,000.

CANNOT FIGHT GENTLY.

The reaction after the strain of the World War has produced not only unprecedented horror of war itself but a widespread demand that in case war is unavoidable, it shall be "civilized" and "humane"—in other words, the fighting must be done as gently as possible. Simultaneous with this demand of an impossibility is the demand that war be swift (and therefore deadly and terrible) in order that its desolation may be less in consequence of an early conclusion. Obviously this latter demand may be cited by those favoring the use of the submarine and other recent inventions as war weapons. In response to the criticism of the employment of air bombers against the Rifians, General Sir Frederick Maurice has made some very pointed remarks:

We (the British) mowed down the Mahdists by thousands at Omdurman with quick-firing rifles and sent against them what was then a very modern type of howitzer. The villages of backward peoples are ordinarily forts. Is it more brutal to drop bombs on these forts from the air than to rain upon them shells discharged by artillery? Is it more brutal to bomb than to blockade? If we are to begin to make limits as to the use of weapons, where are we to stop? What weapon can we pretend is more humane than others?

He adds that the great recognized need is to get a war over quickly and the pressure in this direction from all sides is increasing. "This being so, attempts to make war appear humane, which it can never be, can lead only to deception and disappointment, and by presenting war in a false light are likely to make it more frequent." Unquestionably it is true that the most vigorous and rapid war is the most humane in the end, and to prolong the agony by attempting to fight "gently" would be unspeakable folly.

OPPOSING SUBMARINES.

During the war the submarine in German hands was a thing of terror; now, after recent appalling disasters, it is a thing to dread. The worst of the recent disasters, the tragic loss of the British M-1 with 65 officers and men, has revived in England the demand for the abolition of this type of warship. The subject came up at the Washington disarmament conference four years ago, when the number and armament of battleships and the size of cruisers were restricted. The British proposed the abolition of the war submarine, but the French, Italian and Japanese delegates strongly objected, taking the ground that it was a legitimate weapon of defense. The British proposition received no real support, although Secretary Hughes declared that the British argument in this connection was almost unanswerable and had been made in the interest of the peace of the world.

During the war German submarines sank twelve million tons of merchant shipping and drowned non-combatant seamen and passengers. With a view to prevent a repetition of such barbarous warfare the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan pledged themselves not to use submarines as commerce destroyers, but the Washington conference declined to forbid the use of submarines in offensive and defensive warfare. In overruling Great Britain the other sea powers definitely recognized the submarine as a legitimate weapon of warfare. The British have now renewed the agitation and many will hope that something will ultimately come of it. Indeed, it is probable that there are many who would be glad if the submarine had never been invented.

The New York production of "Hamlet" in modern clothes, where in the hero wears a tuxedo and the "Ophelia" an ultra-modern dance gown, has failed to catch the public fancy and its immediate withdrawal has been announced. No wonder! Movie actors may wear modish clothes better than fidelity to role and scene and get away with it, but the people who go to see "Hamlet" are likely to belong to the intelligently critical classes.

able from London having announced that "Satanstoe Says Plants Can Feel Like Humans." Arthur

Smith of Scotch Plains, N. J., hurried into print to say that he found it out twenty-five years ago and published an article showing that plants have "brain power." Still, even the more gullible part of the public may be inclined to await further investigation.

Not one but two automobiles, speeding side by side, tried to beat a train to a crossing the other day on Long Island, and in this instance two cars were smashed instead of one. Incidentally three men were killed. But probably the limit of mingled idocy and foolhardiness has not yet been reached.

THE STOMACH'S SELF STARTER.

I often think of the appetite as a sort of starter for the first stages of digestion that is done by the stomach.

As you know from experience, you sit down to a meal sometimes and everything looks good and tastes good. You enjoy every part of the meal and it sets up no disturbance afterwards. And yet the meal was plain in every respect.

At another time the meal is most elaborate, and yet nothing tastes really good, and you get no enjoyment from it.

What is the reason for this? Simply that you didn't have a "starter" as it were, and the stomach found it harder to do its work of preparation for intestinal digestion.

Research men working on digestion have found that the taste, smell, the anticipation due to pleasure in former meals of the same food under like circumstances, all have a tendency to excite the flow of juices in the stomach, and thus the digestion there gets off to a flying start.

This is the part of digestion in which the brain or head, enters, and they estimate that it lasts from thirty to forty minutes.

This means then that if you have a good appetite, you have thirty or forty minutes of the stomach's work done for you by your appetite, or brain desire, if I can use such an expression.

And how is an appetite created? On your part by some physical work or exercise, especially outdoor work or exercise, by spreading your meals a fair distance apart, and by not eating between meals. On the part of those who serve you by the "appetizing" way the food is prepared, and the attractiveness and cleanliness of the table and its contents.

So if you seem to lack appetite or be "off your food," try to regain it by the above suggestions.

Remember appetite not only means enjoyment, but also an actual self starter for the first process of digestion.

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATRES.

In "Wild Wild Susan" Bebe Daniels' new Paramount starring picture which is being shown for the last times tonight at the Keeney Theatre at seven and nine, Bebe has the role of a peppy young New York society girl who can't live without excitement. The short features on this same bill include the Keeney News, Memories, "Earth's Oddities" and the work of a comedy "Water Wagons" Jimmie Connors and his orchestra featuring the overture "Cecelia."

One of the finest pictures ever screened is "The Lights of Old Broadway" starring Marion Davis, in a Cosmopolitan production for Metro-Goldwyn, now playing at the Opera House tonight and Wednesday. The film is an adaptation of the stage success, "The Merry Wives of Gotham." There are also the wonderful short features that include Pathe News, Pictorial Trovies, Scenic, and the funny "Water Wagons."

Large attendances were delighted Monday with the showing of the photoplay, "The Gold Rush" at the Orpheum Theater. That Charlie Chaplin has made in "The Gold Rush" his new screen feature, his greatest comedy is the claim advanced by those who saw it Monday. The picture will be at the Orpheum this week.

At the Auditorium tonight Zane Grey's "The Thundering Herd" will be screened. Jack Holt, Lois Wilson, Noah Beery and Raymond Hatton are featured.

Cobra Sacred to Hindu

The Hindus believe that the cobra once saved its head in a snake over Buddha while he slept, and was blessed by the saint, who placed a mark upon its back as a warning to him not to molest him. Little wonder it can be made against this superstition in efforts toward eradicating it.

THIRTEEN—LUCKY NUMBER.

Yesterday's story told of the capture of Captain John Manley in the General Washington's cruiser Lee of the British supply ship Nancy with a huge store of precious military supplies. One hundred and fifty years ago today soldiers of freedom were still counting their treasure and discovering riches which had been overlooked in the first hurried examination. On December 1, a newspaper reporter who was covering army headquarters brought in to his city editor the following story:

"It was agreed to fit out a number of ships of war for our defense; a particular kind of lanterns, called Muscovy lights, was necessary for the powder rooms to prevent the danger arising from the common lanterns. There were none to be had, nor could one be made on this extensive continent. At the very juncture in which they were wanted a transport is taken by one of our cruisers, and in her there is found, not only the kind of lanterns we much wanted and not one more of them. Surely we may, without being charged with superstition, be permitted to say, 'The Lord hath done this, and it is marvellous in our eyes.'"

Thirteen colonies; thirteen "ships of war" preparing for their service; thirteen Muscovy lights needed to complete their equipment; thirteen Muscovy lights "and not one more or less" presented by the Nancy at the moment when they were needed and could not be found elsewhere. If thirteen had never before been America's lucky number, it earned that distinction then and there.

The flag most used by the colonists at this time bore as its most conspicuous device a rattlesnake above the challenge "Don't Tread on Me," and this rattle had thirteen rattles. When a little later the first flag with the thirteen stripes appeared the taunt of the Tories that the stripes represented the thirteen rings on the tail of Lady Washington's tomcat bothered the "rebels" not at all.

Hardly had the Nancy's captured stores been counted and safely stored away when Captain Manley made another captive, bringing into Marblehead the Concord, an almost new British sloop with a choice cargo of baled dry goods, 350 children of coal and a helpful store of useful military information contained in letters and documents intended for the British command in Boston. Nor was the capture of the Concord to be the last of Manley's gifts to his commander-in-chief, General Howe.

Was filling his letters to London at this time with reports of his "very alarming apprehensions" regarding his supply of provisions. He used some very drastic expressions about "rebel privateers infesting the bay" and suggested that in the future his supplies should be shipped "in ships of war, without their lower deck guns or in sufficient force to defend themselves against these pirates." ## Girl's Bravery Wins $500 Cash And Vail Medal

Telephone Operator Stayed at Piedmont, W. Va., Post to Warn Town of River Flood—Assistant Also Rewarded as Are Other Employees—Some Also Get Citations.
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Dec. 1.—With the surging Potomac threatening to destroy the little town of Piedmont, West Virginia, Miss Anna L. Lennan, chief operator of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, risked her life to warn the townspeople of the danger during the flood of March, 1924.

Her heroism was recognized today when the telephone corporation conferred upon Miss Lennan the Vail medal, a cash award of $500 and the distinction of having performed the outstanding feat of telephonic bravery during 1924.

Lloyd M. Atkins, also of the Piedmont office, received a silver medal and an award of $250 for services performed during the same period.

Others Are Rewarded.
Other silver medals and $250 awards were presented to the following telephone employees:

Trygve Jorgensen, foreman of the New York Telephone Company at Brooklyn.

Mrs. Katherine C. Brisson, night operator, of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company, at Fitchburg, Mass.

Ida M. Blanchard, agent and night operator, of the Northern New York Telephone Corporation at Natural Bridge, N. Y.

Hubert Harris, line foreman, of the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania, at Norristown, Pa.

Mrs. Aileen Catharine Smith, manager of the Cincinnati and Suburban Bell Telephone Company at New Richmond, O.

"Disregarding the entreaties of the members of her family," said the citation granted to Miss Lennan, "she made her way from her home in Westernport, Md., just across the river from Piedmont to the central office over a bridge, which even at an early hour in the morning had been condemned."

"Reaching the central office Miss Lennan organized her operators to meet the emergency. With two other operators she remained in the office in spite of frequent warnings to leave, realizing the vital importance of telephonic service, particularly in the case of fire."

"During a greater part of the day the water swept through the street in front of the building, covering part of the stairs. Miss Lennan remained on duty until 11 p. m., when the flood had started to recede."

Virtually similar service was performed by Miss Lennan again on May 12, when another flood visited Piedmont.

Atkins was awarded a silver medal "because he placed the interests of the public above those of himself and his family," during the Piedmont floods. Atkins was instrumental in maintaining telephonic communication during the flood period.

Others Are Cited.
Trygve Jorgensen—Risked life and displayed courage, initiative and prompt action in saving the life of a fellow employee, by rescuing him from a perilous position in contact with a high tension cable.

Mrs. Katherine C. Brisson—By resourcefulness and persistence made possible the rescue from grave danger two night operators at Winchendon, Mass., who had been overcome by coal gas. Failure of these operators to answer a telephone call led Mrs. Brisson to bring about an investigation which led to their discovery and rescue.

Miss Ida M. Blanchard—Heroically defying flames which were eating their way through the walls of a room where she sat at a switchboard, Miss Blanchard telephoned warnings and calls for assistance which materially lessened the damage caused by a serious fire at Natural Bridge, N. Y.

Hubert Harris—Displayed unusual courage and initiative under hazardous conditions when he put out a fire on a central office pole at Downingtown, Pa., that would have seriously interfered with telephonic service.

Mrs. Aileen C. Smith—Two post office robbers were arrested because of the alertness, good judgment and persistence of Mrs. Smith at New Richmond, Ohio. After having been notified of the post office robbery Mrs. Smith kept in touch with the operations and movements of the criminals through persons living near the office.

Public Health Nursing in State

State Health Commissioner Nicoll Tells of Some of Activities of Public Health Nurses—Practically Every Municipality Has Enough Work to Warrant Nurse's Employment.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, Dec. 1.—In an interview today Dr. Matthias Nicoll, Jr., state commissioner of health, praised the work of the public health nurse as one of the cogs in the machinery for disease prevention. "If it were not for the public health nurse," states Dr. Nicoll, "preventive medicine could not possibly have progressed in its results as it has in the past few years."

The usual duty of a nurse is to care for the sick but according to Dr. Nicoll this is not done by the public health nurses employed by the state department of health.

Variety of Work.
During the month of October, 1923, the fifty-seven department nurses made a total of 2,450 visits. These were for various purposes: Some of them to homes where communicable disease existed; others to help children crippled with the after effects of infantile paralysis; some to instruct mothers in maternity and the care of their babies and young children; a few visits were made to inspect the work of midwives and nearly 300 were for purposes of investigation and instruction on Indian reservations.

In addition to these investigations department nurses gave 113 addresses on health topics, held 1,503 interviews with health officials, physicians, public health nurses, and non-professional persons interested in public health, they also attended 57 health demonstrations and 167 public health clinics.

What Nurses Are Doing.
In addition to assisting in the control of one outbreak of diphtheria and one of intestinal disease, the department nurses assisted in the investigation of typhoid fever outbreaks in 10 different municipalities of the state. Largely through the work of one nurse 135 patients were in attendance at department tuberculosis consultation clinics in Jefferson county, while in one city of the state as a result of the efforts of another department nurse the average attendance at the social hygiene clinic increased from 10 to 35 within a comparatively short time. "Health work for mothers, infants and young children is largely educational," states Dr. Nicoll, "and as one would naturally expect department nurses did a vast amount of work along these lines."

Conditions Justify Employment.
"Not only are our own nurses doing work along the lines outlined but in addition they supervise the local public health nurses, the number of which in New York state outside of New York city has increased from 75 in 1912 to nearly 1,200. Practically every municipality in this state has work enough to warrant the employment of at least one nurse who in smaller communities may combine the work of visiting bedside nursing with the duties of public health nursing, while the more populous centers require many more."

Activities at Albany.
Avenue Church.
Tonight the men of the Albany Avenue Baptist Church give a pancake supper from 5 to 8 o'clock. The supper is open to all and each one can have as many pancakes and as much sausage as he cares to eat.

Everyone is urged to come to the prayer and covenant meeting on Thursday evening and enjoy a social time together. There will be an interesting subject and good singing.

The regular meeting of the Women's Missionary Society will be held on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. F. B. Matthews, 233 Albany avenue, with program as follows: Devotions, Mrs. Raymond Whitbeck; lesson, Mrs. W. W. Brady, Jr.; and Miss Lucy J. Healy; current events, Mrs. C. P. Ashley; piano solo, Mrs. L. E. Decker.

Commission for Selling Brewery

Saugerties Man Sues for Broker's Commission in Sale of Hudson Property—Court Says Broker's License Is Not Needed to Entitle One to Commission.

Supreme Court Justice James V. Coffey of Troy has denied a motion to dismiss a complaint in an action brought by David B. Gray of Saugerties against Charles Evans & Sons, who formerly conducted a brewery at Hudson, N. Y. Mr. Gray sold the brewery to parties who reside in Kingston and after the sale was consummated, Evans refused to pay Mr. Gray the broker's commission. The defendant denied that plaintiff was entitled to this commission for the reason he did not possess a broker's license and was not in the real estate business.

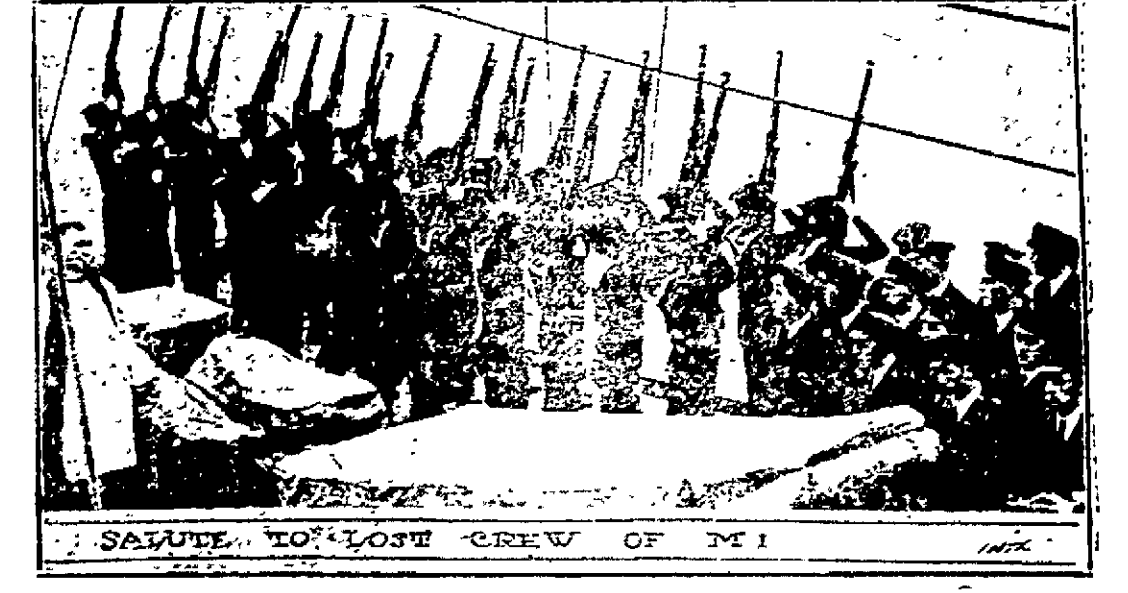

Attorneys Deam, Callender and Cullen, appearing for the plaintiff, contended that in Ulster county it is not necessary to have a broker's license and after issue had been joined the defendants moved before Justice Coffey of Troy for a dismissal of the complaint, which motion Judge Coffey has denied, and is of the opinion it is not necessary to obtain such license in order to entitle one to a commission.

The trial was set for Columbia county but has been changed by the court to the county of Ulster, and will prove very interesting when it is reached for trial.

Florida Homes Bright

Blue, green, brown, red and purple—every hue of the rainbow—can be seen in the stucco houses and bungalows which have made Florida famous. The curious color effects are secured either by incorporating certain mortar colors in the plaster or by painting the surface of the stucco with large brushes and the desired pigment mixture when the surface has dried. Pink and ivory with deep green trim are popular combinations, as are also mixtures of lavender, blue and navy with white trim. Pale green with polychrome is also a standard color combination. The majority of these stucco houses are built with red tile roofs.

Fishing Licenses Needed by All

New Law Will Correct an Abuse—New License Law Will Also Increase State's Revenues.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, Dec. 1.—The new law which provides for issuing combination licenses to hunt, fish and trap in New York state after January 1, 1924, is expected to materially increase the state's revenue from the sale of non-resident fishing licenses and correct an abuse that has existed for years.

As long as there was no requirement in the law for license anglers it was practically impossible to enforce effectively the law requiring non-resident anglers to take out a license because of the difficulty in determining whether or not an angler was a resident of the state. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923, the Conservation Com-

Deeds Decrease, More Mortgages

During the month of November there were filed for record at the office of the Ulster county clerk 232 deeds, releases, rights of way and other transfers of realty, being 27 less than were filed during November, 1923. The number that month being 279. There were nine more mortgages filed for record during November this year, the total number being 232 against 223 during November, 1923.

If you want to clean photographs, records never use a damp cloth. Take a soft cloth and rub on it a little vasoline and use this to wipe off the disc on either side. Be sure that it is well rubbed off. This cleans them without doing any possible harm, and is said to improve the tone of old records.

THE CASSOWARY BIRD

"I'm not as big as my neighbor, Mr. Emu," said Mr. Cassowary bird, "but I am from the same country and I am a sort of relation."

"What do you mean, Brother Cassowary," said another cassowary, "when you say you are a sort of relation?"

"Just what I said," answered Mr. Cassowary. "I am a relation but not a near cousin."

"The Emu isn't my father, nor my grandfather, nor my brother, nor my first cousin, but we're somewhat alike, so we're relations in a way."

"Oh," said the other cassowary bird, "so that is why you spoke as you did."

"The very reason," said Mr. Cassowary.

"But there are things about our family which are finer."

"We are more contented, we think better of life, at any rate."

"We live longer than the ostriches and the emus."

"We do not agree with Mr. Ostrich when he says he loves the heat and the sun of the summer."

"We are liking it better now that it is cool. We care for the forests and the dark places, for those are the places we used to choose for our homes."

"We are beautiful, too, with our rich purple-black feathers and our fine brown and blue neckties."

"They come right along with us. They belong to us. They are a part of us."

"Nor do we change neckties and wear a blue one and then a red one and then a tan one."

"We like our blue neckties, so why change?"

"We don't. That's our answer to that question put by ourselves."

"There is no one more suited to answer a question of that sort when asked by a cassowary than a cassowary."

"Besides our ties are always upon us. They aren't separated."

"They fit better, too. There is no untidiness ever about our ties."

"They never need pressing or anything like that."

"But, oh dear, what things we will eat!"

"Anything we find we will swallow, for oh, our mouths are so large and mobile."

"Dear Mr. Cassowary," said his companion, "a large mouth doesn't mean"

"a noble one. That is, a large mouth may be a fine one—but because it is large it doesn't mean that it must be noble."

"It does when I say so," said Mr. Cassowary.

"Oh no, it doesn't," said his companion.

"It does so," said Mr. Cassowary.

ORDINARY GOOD THINGS

Most people are aware that the choicer cuts of meat, though tender, are neither as nourishing nor as flavorful as the tougher cuts cut from the more active muscles.

Sliced Pressed Beef.—Take a shin of beef and two pounds of the round. Crack the bone, put the meat into a kettle, cover with water and bring to the boiling point. Add salt and pepper, two table-spoonsful of vinegar, a large onion sliced and cook all together until the meat falls from the bones. Skim out the meat, reduce the liquor by boiling, when one-half the quantity, strain through a coarse muslin. Pick the meat into small pieces. To the meat liquor add a pinch of powdered mace, cloves, allspice, a dash of cayenne salt. Boil the liquor and put the meat into it, mixing thoroughly. When well heated turn into a bowl or mold rinsed in cold water; cover and put on a weight, set away to cool. Serve cut into thin slices.

Baked Bean Soup.—Put two cupsful of cold baked beans, four cupsful of water, two slices of onion and a few celery leaves into a saucepan and simmer one hour. Put through a sieve with one cupful of stewed tomatoes and two table-spoonsful of chili sauce; season with salt and pepper, bring to the boiling point and thicken with one table-spoonsful of butter cooked with one table-spoonsful of flour. Serve with croutons.

Shrimp Wiggle.—Take one can of shrimps, two cupsful of milk, one-half can of peas, one table-spoonsful of flour and seasoning. Make a cream sauce with flour and milk, add the peas and shrimps cut into pieces. Bake in ramekins, using buttered crumbs to finish the top.

When serving a hearty dinner with plenty of vegetables, a simple dessert is stuffed dates, served with crackers and cheese and a cup of good coffee; one will never miss a more elaborate dessert. Dates may be stuffed with fondant, nuts or creamed cheese. Of course when cheese is used for the stuffing it is not served again in the same menu.

REDUCING STATIC.

F. M. RUSSELL

Static Can be Minimized with Loop Aerial.

Every few months we read of someone who has invented an apparatus or system that will eliminate static but unfortunately inventors are liable to be a little too optimistic and their claims when investigated are often found to be not the exact truth. However, it is possible to greatly reduce static noises and make listening in a more pleasant occupation.

If you at present use an outdoor aerial and can change your hook-up to one that will enable you to use a loop, it will help considerably. A loop aerial is directional and you sometimes find that though static may be had from stations located in the north, it does not trouble you from stations located in the west. In this way a loop enables you by its directional effect to receive stations that could not be tuned in on an outdoor aerial. If it is impossible to change your set to use a loop, then shorten the aerial and it will help home.

If you have no by-pass condensers across the primary of the radio transformers, try a 6025 across the primary of the first audio and from a 602 to 61 across the primary of the second audio. Sometimes a fixed condenser of 0005 across the secondary of the first audio will also help to smooth out static and other noises. There will always be a certain amount of static that will reach the set, but the by-pass condensers absorb or drain it off and greatly improve reception and tone quality. Copyright, 1923, The S. N. L. Technical Syndicate.

Glacial Period Floods

When the ice began to melt to escape toward the edge of the glacial period, floods occurred and formed rivers that would dwarf many of our largest ones today. So great were these torrents, says Nature Magazine, that enormous boulders were rolled along like pebbles, and thus transported miles beyond their original positions.

Smiths Recover From Poisoning

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Dec. 1.—Governor Al Smith, his wife and daughter Emily, had entirely recovered today from the attack of ptomaine poisoning they had suffered since Sunday night.
The news of their indisposition became known when the governor, who was the last to feel the effects of the poison and the first to recover, left the suite at the Biltmore to visit his sister, Mrs. Mary Glynn, in Brooklyn.
Governor Smith made light of the entire affair and said he had no idea what could have brought on the illness in his family. The Smiths had returned from a week-end spent at Atlantic City as guests of the Seaview Golf Club. They had motored back, stopping for meals en route.

NO EFFECTS FROM TROPICAL DISTURBANCE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Key West, Fla., Dec. 1.—Key West felt no effects from the tropical disturbance that passed over the Florida Keys early today. The disturbance first was detected over the western end of Cuba and travelling at the rate of 200 miles every six hours and apparently headed for Key West, altered its course and passed over the middle Florida Keys to the southern Atlantic.

At midnight the P. and O. steamer Cuba, detained at this port, sailed for Havana.

The Munson liner Red Bird, reported ashore off Miami, has been floated. The weather bureau reported this morning that the tropical disturbance was moving northeastward in the Atlantic ocean.

NASSAU COUNTY GAINED 81,520 NEW RESIDENTS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Albany, N. Y., Dec. 1.—Nassau county gained 81,520 new residents in the last five years giving it a total population of 297,510, according to census figures announced today by Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, secretary of state.

This was the greatest growth the county ever experienced and was nine times as large as the increase between 1915 and 1920.

SANSONVILLE.

Sansonville, Dec. 1.—Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kelder entertained all their children and grandchildren on Thanksgiving. A roast turkey dinner was served. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Jason L. Gray and daughters, Ella and Addie, of Kerkonk; Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Jansen and son, Ward, of Hurley; Mr. and Mrs. Elson Oakley and daughters, Edna, Catherine and Anna, of Olive Bridge; Mr. and Mrs. Merritt J. Kelder of Stone Ridge; Clarence, Alice, Ward, Alberta, Bradford and Burton at home, also Simon and Trude of the V's. A very pleasant Thanksgiving and family reunion was spent during the day.

Plattekill W. C. T. U.

The December meeting of Plattekill W. C. T. U. will be at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Fick, the parsonage of the Plattekill M. E. Church. Because of the short days of winter, the committee will try to meet at 7 p. m. so there will be time for society business and social entertainment, and return before dark. It is hoped the membership will be well represented and that all others interested in the work for the advancement of truth and righteousness will feel free to come.

FORMER SULTAN OF TURKEY HAS TROUBLE PAYING RENT

Living From Hand to Mouth in Little French City—Relatives in Same Boat.
San Remo, France.—Sultan Mohammed VI, the last ruler and caliph of Turkey, is struggling to maintain himself and his small household at this quiet retreat on borrowed money or on charity funds sent him by relatives and former supporters.
While other former European monarchs and nobles are living in comparative luxury in foreign lands, Mohammed VI must make repeated calls for assistance to save him and his modest retinue from poverty.

The aged sultan recently was so hard up that he was obliged to disperse with his young son's German nurse. Soon after that he was threatened with eviction if he failed to pay his rent. Things looked black for the once wealthy and influential head of the Moslem world, when his sister saved the situation by pawning a diamond ring and a rope of pearls.

Scarcely had this debt been settled when the sultan's nephew came to Paris and squandered half the sum realized on his mother's jewels, which was said to be a million francs.

A fresh call probably will be made upon the former monarch's relatives, but many of them are in as great need as the ex-sultan himself. For example, Prince Ziaeddin, eldest son of the sultan's predecessor, Mohammed V, is in the last stages of destitution. He and his wife and two daughters are facing eviction for nonpayment of rent. Friends have started a subscription in their behalf.

The situation of the other 250 members of the imperial family of Turkey who were driven from Constantinople is even more acute than that of the sultan. They are scattered in different parts of Europe and live only by the charity of their friends. When they were expelled from Turkey they were allowed to take about $170. Their property was nationalized and their jewels and property confiscated.

These fugitives include thirty-five princes and princesses of the house of Osmun, three sheiks-ul-Islam, a former grand vizier, many cabinet ministers, two court chamberlains, half a score of editors, many army and navy officers and a number of high government officials.

"Speed Demon" Hen Likes Motoring at 50-Mile Clip

South Woodstock, Conn.—There are towns that lay claim to four-legged chickens and web-footed chickens, but this town lays claim to having the only "speed demon" hen in existence.
"Perry" is the masculine name of this feminine fowl. She roars constantly on the fender or dash board of an automobile being up to a speed of 50 miles an hour, and nothing pleases her more than to speed along the country roads, perched on the fender of the car, wings ruffled, at a fifty-mile-an-hour rate.

A few nights ago the owner of the car decided to make up a winter party to go to a nearby city. He tried to get Perry away from the machine, but she insisted on returning, and to the fact that a trip was contemplated. Perry was out and was treated to a breakfast ride to the city.

The party did not begin in the best of humor for more than fifteen minutes before Perry had a crowd running along her. The strange fowl's behavior soon attracted the fire of a traffic cop, who, seeing the surprised theater party, ordered them to get their "unfounded circus off the highway."

So Perry and another speedy ride came, and in the morning laid an egg in the running board for her master in recompense for his mild rebuke.

Dr. Textor Talks On Russian Cities

Petrograd and Moscow Described by Well Known Lecturer Before Monday Club—Russian and American Factory Workers' Conditions Compared.

On Monday afternoon the members and associate members of the Monday Club met in the church and not in the chapel of the First Dutch Church, as has been the custom, and Dr. Textor made note of the fact that by the irony of fate her lecture would be the least serious of any to date. She had chosen to give an account of St. Petersburg and Moscow before the war, a pleasant phase of Russian life than had yet been considered in this year's course of lectures.

Dr. Textor's description of the creating of the city of St. Petersburg—now Petrograd—by Peter the Great was most interesting as well as informing. Known as the Venice of the north because of its countless lovely waterways, Peter the Great intended this city to be "The Window of Europe," but today it is a darkened window.

Dr. Textor told of the building of the palaces by the "owners of 500 serfs," and of the palace of Peter on the Gulf of Finland, where he entertained his private guests, which was fitted up with most remarkable mechanical devices, for Peter the Great was himself a clever mechanic. Dr. Textor also told of life in St. Petersburg, gay and picturesque, and of the churches and cathedrals, rich in costly treasures.

The speaker's description of her journey from St. Petersburg to Moscow was especially interesting and amusing. On arriving in Moscow for the first time she said that she found the city all that she had dreamed it would be, next in interest and cosmopolitan character and picturesque to Constantinople. She gave a graphic picture of the Kremlin—the great fortress. Making this the center of her description of the city, she next told of the old and new palaces, the church where the czars were crowned and the church where they were buried, of its great squares and its museum and its bazaars, of its banking and wholesale section, and finally in a wide circle quite outside of the much-known Moscow, the factory section of the city.

Although told that she could not get admittance into this part of Moscow, Dr. Textor did finally gain access and described the factory life, so unlike modern factory conditions in this country. The factory workers lived in the factory confines. In summing up conditions in these two great Russian cities at the time described, Dr. Textor took special note of the vast wealth and the almost profligate spending of that wealth on the one hand and of the direst poverty on the other hand. But she found little if any of the real spirit of revolt on the part of the peasants, who rather seemed to consider that that was the order of the world and therefore to be accepted.

Next week Dr. Textor will begin the lectures on Poland, her subject being "The Period of Captivity and Liberation."

ACTIVITIES OF THE PLATTEKILL GRANGE.

Nearly eighty patrons responded to roll call at Plattekill Grange meeting on Saturday evening, November 28. Plans were made for an oyster supper and minstrel show to be given on December 29, with Mrs. Ruloff, Ward of Modena, chairman of committee of arrangements. The third and fourth degrees of the order were conferred by the special degree team on the following candidates: Mrs. James Fowler, Anna Robinson, Howard Leitch, George Eckert and Mrs. Arthur Zimmer. The program consisted of a vocal solo, "A Song of Gratitude," by Charles Everett; "Blessings," a poem, read by the lecturer; and a short sketch, entitled "Woman's Rights," given by C. Ira Thompson as Josiah Allen; Mrs. Charles Everett as Samantha Allen; and Mrs. C. Ira Thompson as Betsey Babbitt. Ice cream, cake and coffee were served liberally by the refreshment committee. Announcement was made of Pomona Grange to meet at Clintonville December 2. At the next meeting there will be election of officers. The program will be in charge of the lecturer. The following committee will have charge of refreshments: Myron and Arthur Foster, Susie and Elizabeth Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Baxter, Helen and David Dempsey, Edna Conine, Mrs. S. Dransfield and Charles Dayton. Plans are already on foot for the annual Christmas party to be held on December 26.

The maid who isn't called to the telephone twenty-seven times a day—at least three of them during dinner.

The uncle who hasn't heaps of money and yet is treated royally.
The son who never asks his father for a check.

The man who never takes a drop—never took a drop, no, sir!
The chorus girl in a movie who doesn't chew gum or smoke.

The novelist who can write a story without a complex, or a single bad word.

State Watching Christmas Trees

To Prevent Introduction of Gipsy Moth From New England—Quarantine Regulations Enforced.

Albany, Dec. 1.—To prevent the spread of the gipsy moth by Christmas trees shipped into New York from New England all roads along the New York border are being patrolled by employees of the Conservation Commission, gipsy moth organization, and the quarantine regulations permitting destruction of any plant on which the gipsy moth can be carried are being rigidly enforced.

The services of more inspectors are required to examine the enormous amount of material that is shipped during a period of about one month of this season, than are required to inspect all the material shipped throughout the balance of the year.

Every tree, bough or other decorative plant that could distribute the gipsy moth must be inspected at the point of shipment, if collected within the Gipsy Moth infested area. To appreciate the thoroughness of the inspection and the magnitude of the work, one must visit the area where the work is in progress. A stop at almost any freight terminal in western New England would undoubtedly reveal a revelation to many. The western advance of the Gipsy Moth previous to 1923 dealt a serious blow to every collector in New England. The shipment of Christmas trees or other decorative greens out of the gipsy moth infested area is prohibited.

There remains now in western New England only a small area where shipment under inspection is permissible, that part of the territory comprising in the gipsy moth barrier zone—a which is a strip of territory extending from the Canadian border to Long Island Sound, east from the New York border some twenty miles. Though small the area in New England where this crop is being harvested, some two hundred men are now engaged in the inspection of the enormous crop that is being gathered. Railroad shipments of Christmas trees are not the only ones over which a close guard is kept. The truckman, private car owner, or other conveyance carrying any of this material must halt and produce a certificate of inspection at the New York border, if travelling from New England.

JUDGE CLEARWATER ON IMPORTANT COMMITTEE

The New York newspapers publish the names of the members of the fifteen committees appointed by Judge Charles Evans Hughes, president of the commission to re-organize the state government.

Judge Hughes recognizes Ulster county and has designated Judge Clearwater as vice-chairman on the committee of conservation which next to the committee on executive and state is regarded as the most important of the committees of the commission. To it has been referred the framing of all legislation regarding the water powers, parks, parkways, highways and forests of the state, and the development and regulation of the state's canal system.

The New York Times commenting upon these appointments, "they consist of the most distinguished New York men and women both Republicans and Democrats. There is no partisan taint upon their appointment. Every one of them is a leader in the public and civic life of New York, and has achieved great distinction in his or her chosen field."

Among the committeemen and committeewomen appointed are Elihu Root, Senators James W. Wadsworth and Royal S. Copeland, ex-Governors Nathan L. Miller, Benjamin B. Odell and Charles S. Whitman, Alton B. Parker and John W. Davis, recent Democratic candidate for the presidency, former Secretary of State Frank L. Polk, former Senator James A. O'Gorman, Ex-Attorney General George W. Wickersham, former Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, William Church Osborne, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mrs. George Pratt, Morley P. O'Brien, Thomas Cochrane of J. Pierpont Morgan & Company, Judge Robert F. Wagner and Ralph Pulitzer of the New York World.

Santa is Here

With His Cheery Smile and Great

Big Pack of Toys!

Santa hasn't aged one bit, children. He is as merry as ever. "So happy," he says, "to think I'm going to see all my dear little children again." Santa would write you himself of his arrival but he is very busy. Instead, he told us to tell you that he is here and anxious to see you.

Santa has, oh so many nice things for you. Mechanical toys for boys of an inquiring turn of mind, who like to see the wheels go round. Toys he especially made for girlyies—and of course, he brought with him dollies, both large and small, and carriages, too, for make believe mothers to give make believe babies plenty of fresh air and sunshine. And thousands of other wonderfully amusing things.

So tell Mother or Dad to bring you here tomorrow, and after you see the many pretty toys, you can whisper in Santa's ear, just the very things you want. And children, remember Santa has a gift for every boy and girl who comes to visit him. He expects you. Do not disappoint him.

SANTA CLAUS WILL GIVE A RECEPTION TO THE CHILDREN EVERY WEEK DAY FROM 3 TO 4:30; SATURDAYS, 2 TO 5 P. M.

Coolidge Will Reply to Lewis

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Dec. 1.—President Coolidge will reply in a few days to the recent letter of John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, in which he hinted at a bituminous miners' strike unless the government interceded to compel the operators to live up to the Jacksonville wage agreement.

Slide Fails to Stop Tiger's Bus

The big clay slide at the Terry Brothers' brickyard on North street Saturday night has failed to stop the operation of Tiger's East Kingston bus line which is still making regular trips. Through error Monday it was stated that Tiger was operating through Flatbush avenue. Mr. Tiger, however, is still going to East Kingston over North street, detouring through the big brick sheds at the Terry yard in order to avoid the slide which has blocked North street for a distance of over five hundred feet.

GREAT DAMAGE FROM MIAMI RECORD RAINFALL.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Miami, Fla., Dec. 1.—Miami record rainfall of 14.1 inches in less than 12 hours yesterday caused damage conservatively estimated today at several hundred thousand dollars.

Most of the road damage was done to buildings under construction. In many cases building materials washed away and walls in partially completed houses were ruined.

The Florida Light and Power Company also suffered considerable damage to their lines and conduits.

Water which stood one and a half feet deep in Miami streets yesterday, today had practically all vanished. A strong gale swept the city early today.

ORANGE COUNTY MAN SHOTS FRIEND IN A FIGHT

Joseph Mazzafiero of Middletown was shot and seriously wounded early Monday morning by Pasquale Gull in the town of Wallkill, Orange county. The shooting occurred during a Christmas party at the home of Gull. Mazzafiero was wounded while struggling with Gull for possession of a double barreled shot gun. The weapon exploded and the charge entered the left hip and the abdomen of Mazzafiero who was rushed to the Thrall Hospital in Middletown where his condition is reported as serious. Gull is being held by the Middletown police pending the outcome of Mazzafiero's injuries. The row started it is said over a woman at the party.

WEST PARK.
West Park, Dec. 1.—Miss Cora M. Hall starts on Monday to attend the annual meeting of the Diocesan Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary to be held at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York city, on Tuesday.

Friends of Miss Hall and of her late sister, Mrs. John Jewell Smith, are guests at Heartsease for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. William Schickel and their daughter, Miss Gretchen Schickel, spent Thanksgiving Day with Mrs. Long, sister of Mrs. Schickel, at Glen Elder, New Jersey.

Miss Nora Seely of Walton, N. Y., spent the Thanksgiving holidays with her aunt, Mrs. R. C. Seely, at the rectory.

Mrs. Otto Rider of Kingston and her daughter, Miss Emma Rider, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Quinn.

Dr. Kingsbury, professor at Bryn Mawr College, was a recent guest at Heartsease.

Play in C. L. Society.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Church of the Carpenter will give the play "The Old Swedish" on Wednesday evening, November 2, at 8 o'clock in the new Parish House in Kingston and will be served after the performance.

Temple Cat Out of Rock.

Some British India natives are quite simple and outside of work with hands and feet. It is about the only thing they do and they are very fond of it. It was not before the war that they were so fond of it.

Three Killed in Tampa Storm

Nineteen Persons are Also Injured in Gale at Tampa—Shipping at a Standstill Along Florida Coast—Caution Advised Along Atlantic.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Tampa, Fla., Dec. 1.—Three negroes dead and 19 injured represented the toll today of Tampa's worst storm in four years. The dead and injured were taken from the debris of work barracks on Davis island, which were blown over by a 48 mile gale.

With power off, traffic lights lights out and street cars halted in many places, Tampa business was practically at a standstill today.

All wire communications with Tampa from the north were cut off except for one commercial wire.

Heavy rains fell at Fort Myers, Sarasota and Bradenton, and much damage is feared to have been done by prevailing high winds.

None of those injured in the Davis island wreckage was hurt seriously. All of the dead are unidentified.

The coast guard is patrolling the coast, but no distress signals had been received here this afternoon.

Mansions Threatened.
West Palm Beach, Fla., Dec. 1.—Many millionaires' mansions on Ocean boulevard here today were threatened by lashing waves as volunteers worked feverishly throwing up a temporary bulkhead to prevent the boulevard, two miles south of the inlet, from completely washing away.

Old seamen declare the ocean here to be the wildest seen in years. The sea wall along Ocean boulevard gradually is weakening as the mountainous waves pound against it.

Shipping at a Standstill.
Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 1.—High winds swept Peninsula Florida early today, disrupting telephone and telegraph service and reaping heavy damage to electric and telephone wires in the state.

A 52 mile gale was reported at Tampa, Miami, experienced a 48 mile gale and a fifty mile gale swept Jacksonville. Accompanying the high winds have been unusually heavy rains throughout South Florida. In Miami poor sewerage facilities allowed the waters to back upon the main business streets two feet deep in places.

Shipping was practically at a standstill all along the Florida coast today, and scores of craft were scurrying to ports for protection from high winds and rough seas.

Gale Moving Northeastward.
New York, Dec. 1.—Caution was advised all shipping along the Atlantic coast by the weather bureau today. Warning was given of northeast storms from Jacksonville, Fla., to Boston, Mass. The storm, of tropical origin, and centering off the northeast coast of Florida, will move rapidly northeastward, increasing in intensity, probably reaching gale force winds, within the next 24 hours.

HEESCH ARRESTED ON ASSAULT CHARGE

John Heesch was arrested at First Binnewater Monday by Deputy Sheriff Anderson Ellsworth and is being held in the county jail pending a hearing on a charge of assault, second degree. It is alleged that Heesch threw a stone which struck Anthony Gubicki, aged 14, in the head, inflicting injuries which necessitated him being taken to the Benedictine Hospital for treatment. The lad later left the hospital. His father swore out a warrant before Justice of the Peace Weston Clapper at Rosendale and placed it in the hands of the sheriff for execution.

A hearing will be held in the matter on December 7 at Rosendale.

MAN WHOSE CAR KILLED ANOTHER HELD FOR JURY

James H. Rumpf, 77 years old, of Middletown was fatally injured Saturday evening when struck by an auto operated by Walter S. Moore, also of Middletown. Rumpf, who was dragged fifty feet by the car, died later at Thrall Hospital. Moore was held to await the action of the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter in the second degree by Recorder Starr in Middletown.

JUNIOR BOY SCOUTS' CLUB AT ELLENVILLE.

The Rev. T. H. E. Richards of the Ellenville Methodist Church is organizing a Junior Boy Scouts' Club. Eighteen boys of from 12 to 15 years of age are now out for a preliminary meeting last Tuesday evening. The next meeting will be held Wednesday afternoon, December 2, after school. Alfred Counts will be the supervisor.

Makes Candle List.

If you want candles to last try the following plan: Take each candle by the wick and give it a good coating of white varnish. Then put away for a day or two to harden. The varnish prevents the flame from running down and so preserves the life of the candle.

More and More Candies.

More than 200,000,000 worth of candies of all sorts are coming out of the U. S. in 1925.

FAR UP THE YANGTZE

Haystacks Tied to Trees in Paddy Field of a Sze-chuan Farm.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

A THOUSAND miles westward from the coast of China the Yangtze river, which in Chinese means "The Child of the Ocean," in its passage through the outer rim of central Asia's mountain system has carved, in surpassing beauty and majestic grandeur, the five gorges of the upper Yangtze, rightly called the gateway to West China. They stretch from Ichang, until recently the head of steam navigation, to Kweichow, a distance of 125 miles.

The traveler is prompted to call "hats off" as he sails between these massive walls, crowned with cathedral domes that companion with the clouds, and his admiration is mingled with awe of the river, with its succession of rapids and treacherous whirlpools that take heavy toll of life and merchandise from those who enter, thus creating the tradition that only the hardy and the favored of the gods pass through.

Such is the entrance to the country which the first western traveler, Marco Polo, who visited that region in the Thirteenth century, described as a cultivated garden with great cities, and a recent visitor calls "Sze-chuan the Beautiful, the richest and most populous and altogether the most picturesque part of China."

For many centuries and until yesterday, the journey from Ichang to Chungking, a distance of 300 miles, required fully a month and sometimes two. It was made by native junk, pulled along after the manner of the old-fashioned canal boat, but instead of the tow-path mule, by a crew of 20 to 60 men tugging at the shore end of a bamboo hawser sometimes fully one-half mile in length.

Today dynamite is blasting a safer course, and 14-knot steamers make the journey in 40 steaming hours. The debris of the waters, as these rivermen believe, have won their victories also, for a large German commercial steamer lies buried in 120 feet of water at the entrance to one of the gorges.

Railway to Be Built

Tomorrow it will be the railway, for it is now known that Sze-chuan holds a golden store for the first road that enters it. The French have long planned to extend their Tonkin-Yunnan line northwest to Chungking and Chunging, which will connect the province with the railway systems of northwest China and Manchuria; and the four-nation Hu-Kwang agreement, in which America has a share, calls for a line from Hankow to Chungking.

A company of American engineers has completed the survey of this last named line and a start has been made on its construction. When this is completed it will be a surprise in the breakfast in Chungking, and tiffin in Chungking.

Time, which in the West is born with wings and flies, but in China stands footless, content to crawl, will be saved, and the Sze-chuan Alps will be with those of Europe as the means of travel. But with the dawn will come the loss of the most extraordinary journey in the world, for the spirit of the Orient departs when the locomotive enters.

One will be that growing sense of the grandeur and majesty of God's creation, which is experienced as one moves slowly through these gorges to their climax in the Yungkuang gorge, where 20 peaks rise one above another 2,000 feet into the clouds.

No longer will there be the thrill of danger, excitement, and awe, and the heart will be lulled by the softness of the journey, which is experienced as one moves slowly through these gorges to their climax in the Yungkuang gorge, where 20 peaks rise one above another 2,000 feet into the clouds.

So, too, the sense of the grandeur and majesty of God's creation, which is experienced as one moves slowly through these gorges to their climax in the Yungkuang gorge, where 20 peaks rise one above another 2,000 feet into the clouds.

The western part of Szechuan might well be called the museum of the human races. The rugged, undulating, hilly, mountainous, and plateaued land is a veritable museum of the human races. Here are to be found the surviving remnants of the most heroic struggle for existence that humanity has ever waged and this, for lack of a better word, we call the "museum."

The Chinese call them "the eight great nations" but it is believed that there are several times as many nations as tribes, each under its own king, and each with its own laws and customs. ## Financial and Commercial

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Dec. 1.—The railroad stocks were the leaders in a moderate forward movement in prices today, which, after considerable hesitancy, was participated in by the oil and high priced industrial and specialties.
Call money was in good supply at five per cent.
Good buying continued in the speculative non-dividend railroad shares, with New Haven and a score or more of the stocks in this group selling at or near the high prices of the year to date. A block of 5,000 shares of New Haven sold at 42, the highest since 1918, after which the stock moved up fractionally higher, gaining more than two points for the day.
New advances of two to nine points in American Can, Woolworth, General Electric, American Smelting, National Lead, etc., signalled the return of speculative interest to the high priced industrial leaders. American Can sold up to 256 for a gain of six points, approximating its former high price for the year.
The trend of the oil stocks was upward with Pan American and Marland in the lead.
The pool specialists and a few of the industrial stocks in which a heavy short interest existed were the only ones to show any great amount of buoyancy during the advance of the railroad shares. The steel and copper stocks were slightly reactionary, the utilities inactive and fairly steady, the motor stocks dull and heavy.

"Ma" Issues 5 Proclamations

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Austin, Texas, Dec. 1.—Attention of Texas momentarily drifted from the highway probe and the call for a special session of the legislature by the injection of side issues, swung back to the main issues today following the announcement at Amarillo by Lee Satterwhite, speaker of the house, that the proclamation for a session on January 1 has been drawn by him and will be given official publicity December 15.
Governor Miriam A. Ferguson had stated she would not call a special session by December 10, as had been requested by members of the Texas house.
Yesterday, however, the issued five proclamations calling for special elections to fill vacancies in the house, a step never taken by former governors except when they contemplated calling a special session.

SOCIETY NOTES

Dillen-Sheldon.
Miss Ethel Sheldon of Walden and Frank Dillen of Ellenville were married at the Ellenville Episcopal Church on Saturday evening, November 28, by the Rev. D. S. Agnew.

Bauer-Hamm.
Ernest Bauer of No. 11 Hone street and Miss Josephine Helen Hamm of No. 601 Delaware avenue were united in marriage on Thanksgiving Day at St. Peter's Church by the Rev. J. P. Neumann. They were attended by James P. Kearney and Tillie B. Kearney.

Sorosis.
Mrs. Lorraine Wood was the hostess of Sorosis on Monday afternoon. The paper for the day on "National Parks" was admirably prepared and presented by Mrs. Schornheimer. The roll call of current events proved to be exceptionally interesting on Monday afternoon. Next week Sorosis will meet with Mrs. Van Wagoner at her home on John street.

Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R.
The regular monthly meeting of Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R., will be held at the chapter house on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock, preceded by the local board meeting at 2 o'clock. The program will consist of a paper, "Pioneer Households," given by Mrs. Charles G. Ellis, with music composed during the Colonial period, especially the 1740's. There will be vocal solos, given in Colonial costume by Miss Edith Holmes and piano solos—all of this period—by Mrs. Augustus H. Van Buren. The hostesses will be Mrs. C. Victor Livingston and Mrs. John M. Herbert. Annual dues will be received at this meeting.

A Birthday Surprise.
A very enjoyable surprise party was tendered little Marie Arace of 27 Henry street Saturday afternoon when six of her little friends gathered with smiles and packages of joy to help her celebrate her sixth birthday. Games were played, after which they were ushered into the dining room where covers were laid for seven. The first thing that drew their attention was a lighted birthday cake with six candles. Refreshments were served after which the little ones were each presented with a solid chocolate Santa Claus as favors. Little Marie received many pretty and useful gifts. Those present were Louise Kohnmunch and mother of Roseadale, Josie Adala, Frankie Adala, Frankie Kilmer, Billie Miller, Warren Arace and the little hostess herself, Marie Arace.

Short-Stubbaugh.
The home of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Stubbaugh, Elm Hall, Mich., was the scene of a pretty wedding Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, November 24, when their daughter, Mabelle Irene, was united in marriage to C. V. Short, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Short, of this city. The Rev. Mr. Jansen of the M. E. Church officiated, using the impressive ring service. The bride wore a formal gown of Harding blue georgette crepe, trimmed in velvet of a corresponding shade carrying a bouquet of Ophelia roses. Only the immediate members of the family were present. After the wedding dinner the young couple left for a motor trip after which they will be at home at 221 East 8th street, Flint, Mich. Mrs. Short is a graduate of the Central Michigan College. For the past six years she has been associated with the public schools of Flint, the last three years being principal of Washington school. Mr. Short is connected with the Buick Motor Company, Flint, Mich.

Brophy-Deegan.
A pretty wedding took place at 4:45 o'clock Thanksgiving afternoon at St. Mary's Church, when Helen M. Deegan became the bride of William C. Brophy. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William H. Kennedy. The bride was charmingly gowned in a beaded tulle over white tulle, wearing a silk net veil, with a headband made of bridal veil and pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and narcissus. The train bearer was little Roberta McLaughlin, who looked sweet in a white Canton crepe dress trimmed with white satin ribbon, wearing a hat to match caught with white roses. The maid of honor was Miss Julietta Deegan, a sister of the bride, who also looked charming in an orchid beaded Canton crepe dress, with a picture hat to match. The best man was John Brophy, brother of the groom. During the ceremony Bernard Peeney sang "O Promise Me." After the wedding a reception was held at the home of the bride. Both are popular young folks and have the best wishes of a host of friends.

Rolnick-Jacobson.
William Rolnick of Newburgh and Miss Rae Jacobson of No. 21 St. Mary's street were united in marriage at the Church of Agudas Achaim on West Union street, on Sunday by Rabbi Kopolovich. The bride was gowned in Dutchess satin with pearl and rhinestone trimmings and her veil was caught with a wreath of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of pink roses. She was attended by Miss Ethel Jacobson as maid of honor who wore pink Georgette and carried pink carnations. The best man was Irving Jacobson. The bridesmaids were the Misses Frances Jacobson, Ruth Rolnick, Dorothy Levine and Esther Goldstein. They were gowned in pastel shades and carried bouquets of pink roses. The flower girls were Anna Jacobson and Freda Goldstein, who carried baskets of flowers which they strewn in front of the bride as she advanced down the aisle. The ushers were Irving Siegel, Harry Stone and Michael Rolnick. During the ceremony Miss Rolnick sang "O Promise Me." At the close of the ceremony a reception was held in Pithman Hall which was attended by over two hundred guests. Mr. and Mrs. Rolnick will reside in Newburgh. Both are popular young folks and have the well wishes of a host of friends.

Smith-Walsh.
A very pretty fall wedding was solemnized on November 25 at the apartment awaited them.

Tonic in Air Travel, According to Doctor

At a medical convention in New York one of the speakers heartily urged tired business men to ride in the air as a tonic to lethargic mental processes. He says the air is vitalized at street level in the city, and those who would think clearly and to the point should soar aloft, taking their problems, light or heavy, as fellow passengers, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

All that holds back many persons from using the plane as a means of locomotion is the fear of falling. The best way to cure that fear is to fly. The many who have tried it do not need to be reminded of their exhilarating sentiment of utter security. One who flies is bereft of the ordinary yardsticks of measurement and feels disengaged from compass bearings as from plummetings of the depth beneath. Space seems the same on every hand; height loses its meaning, except as it expands the horizon. It is attachment to the earth, not detachment from it, that brings dizziness.

The supremely inspiring sensation is to feel oneself borne up and up, without apparent effort or any limitation, as though supported by a great, strong, supernatural hand that could not fall. Those who travel in a closed cabin, impervious to anything but a book or a card game, will not derive from the experience the thrill of travel in an open plane. It is hard to imagine that in days to come the hardened commuter will sleep or frivel away his hours aloft, frankly bored by the panorama beneath him. One who flies will lose much of the benefit if, having all the pure air there is, he does not fill his lungs with it.

Not an Easy Job to Get Python to Eat
When kept in captivity, pythons often refuse food and go on a prolonged "hunger-strike," which frequently results in death.

To obviate this it is necessary to feed the big snakes by forcible means, and a writer in the Wide World Magazine gives a very interesting description of how this is done.

"It is a very simple process," he says. "Our python was carried out to a sunlit grassy lawn. One man held the snake's tail, a second bestrode its middle, while a third gripped its head and forced open its jaws. Injuria squatted in front and, taking a pound of meat, gently thrust it into the snake's capacious throat, and with a smooth, round stick, about a foot in length, pressed the meat into the reptile's gullet. It was now the second man's job to caress the meat and massage it a yard down the long red lane. So a then took charge and carefully worked the lump down to the pocket where the stomach is located."

Expansion of Stone

It was once thought that stone expanded at a uniform rate when heated, but that is now declared, on good authority, to be incorrect. In tests of marble and limestone, small increases of temperature above normal gave only a slight expansion, but the rate increased rapidly with further temperature rises. The expansion of marble at a few degrees above normal was only a fractional part of that of steel; at 100 degrees C. the average expansion was about that of steel, while at 250 degrees this rate was approximately doubled. These peculiarities are of particular interest where the stone is used with other materials, as in building construction. While marble expanded on heating, it did not shrink to its original dimensions on cooling. These unusual properties probably give rise to the warping of marble noticed in headstones in cemeteries.

Ireland's Big Cavern

One of the largest and most extraordinary of caverns is that at Mitchell town, Ireland. The first man to make an extensive exploration of this celebrated natural feature was a Frenchman, one Martel, who is likewise an authority on the caverns of France.

The Irish cavern is formed in limestone and is extraordinary for its number and extent of its connected passages, which, when plotted upon a chart, resemble the streets of a city. The length of the cave is about a mile and a quarter, and it contains some animal inhabitants, including a species of spider, which are peculiar to it, and have their entire existence within its recesses.

Speaking of Insects

An Indian man paid $300 for a bee. Not so much. A political bug often costs more.—Toledo Blade.

Another Row at Mitchell Trial

Major Graves, a Member of the Court: Mumbles Remark and Reid Chat: Jingles His Right to Sit Longer as a Member of the Court.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Dec. 1.—Another heated row broke at the Colonel William Mitchell court martial today when Representative Frank R. Reid, Republican of Illinois, defense counsel, objected to remarks by Major General William S. Graves, a member of the court.

The exchange between opposing sides became so acrimonious that Major General Robert L. Howze, president of the court, ordered the room cleared.

While Captain T. W. Yarnell of the Navy was being examined by Reid, Graves mumbled a remark that scarcely could be heard ten feet. Reid heard it, however, and quickly turned to the court and announced:

"I will not have my cross examination of a witness interrupted."

Because of the row, Reid moved to discharge Graves from the court. After consultation in private, however, the court denied the motion, and Graves was permitted to remain as a member.

Reid's question which provoked the hostilities was loaded with sarcasm. "The reason you say you did not join Major Brant in this exercise was to show you were cooperating with him?" Reid shot at Captain Yarnell.

Yarnell had previously testified that he favored cooperation between the army and navy air forces during the Hawaiian maneuvers. He was commander of the navy air forces during the maneuvers.

Graves made an inaudible remark at this stage and Reid whirled, shouting:

"Now, I have the right to conduct a cross examination as I see fit. I object to you interrupting me by telling me how I should conduct it."

"I don't think he has a right to lecture me as to my duty on this court," said Graves, turning toward Howze.

"I want the records to show that during my examination I was interrupted by General Graves so that I was unable to continue my cross examination. We will have a showdown on this," said Reid, banging the table.

"Music-Mad" Snakes

Captured by Women.
At the mouth of the Ganges, a river of India, there is a large tract of marshy land called the Sunderbunds. More than half this tract is unexplored, yet within its borders live a tribe of people who do nothing but catch snakes. They are purely nomadic, living in boats and plying their trade between the marshes and the by-lanes of Calcutta where are situated the venom vendors.

Eighty to 85 per cent of the total tribal strength is said to consist of women who feel themselves as much at home among the death-dealing reptiles as among human beings. They seem to possess immunity from the poison of cobra and the krait alike, or even the spotted blacksnake that is found here in great numbers.

In Calcutta there are many places where one can obtain snake venom. Yet it is perhaps significant that Italy is one of the largest buyers of this strange commodity. For what it is used, precisely, is not explained.

More interesting, however, is the manner in which the snakes are captured. First these reptiles are music-mad. The note of a reed pipe is one thing they cannot resist and as it is being played they come as near to the player as is possible. The piper waits until he feels that the music has got hold of the serpent, then he plays faster and faster until the particular snake desired appears to be paralyzed. Then the piper calmly walks up, catches hold of the snake just under its head and thrusts it into a basket.—Grit.

Tree Frogs Creatures of Peculiar Habits

Many strange variations in temperament and rearing of young characterize the tree frogs of tropical America. A famous South American species makes small pens or nurseries under water, in which its eggs are left to hatch, and where the tadpoles are confined, protected from all danger. Another species carries its large eggs on its back until they hatch and the young remains some time afterward. Another species develops pouches in the skin of the back of the female, in which the eggs and young are safely transported.

North American tree frogs possess to a remarkable degree the faculty of changing color by modification of the contents of the pigment cells under the skin, so as to enable them to enable them to blend their coloration. In winter they bury themselves in the earth or in the decayed wood and dust of old stumps, and breed in the spring.

Retrospect

In looking back over the life of a man, one often finds that the most important events are those which are the least expected. It is the same with the life of a nation. It is the same with the life of a world. It is the same with the life of a universe. It is the same with the life of a God.

Life with always have some cross in it. New heights of worthier being keep appearing, new works of service beckon us to take hold. The upward way cannot be easy; it must be climbing to the end; but, as we climb, there comes more love of man, more love of God; a blessing of stronger, kinder, happier life. And ever growing over all, a quiet, restful sense of something brighter, happier still, beyond some crown of better life than we know of here, which the Lord hath, in the unfolding of the eternal years, for them that love Him.—Brooks Herford.

Seemed Like a "Slam"

He is still wondering what the great lady meant, if anything. When he happened along he was at one end of a line, the other end being far out in the lake.

"Fishing, I see," said the girl.

"Yes," responded the young man. And then he added, in a facetious vein: "Fish feeds the brain."

Striding along, the girl presently called back over her shoulder: "I hope you have a large catch."

Unreasonable to Expect

The orchestra was questioning the conductor's tone and tedious pace when he arrived.

"What's this?" he demanded from the doorway. "I can hear only the strings, not the wind instruments."

"It's too hard a job for the wind instruments," replied the orchestra leader. "The players can't blow and jump at the same time!"

Peanut Not Properly Appreciated as Food

The peanut sold in this country, mainly to boys in the street and to persons wishing to feed the animals in the zoo, is rapidly becoming an article of the greatest commercial value. Already it is being used in the production of 155 foods and useful articles.

From the peanut we obtain peanut butter, ten varieties of milk, five kinds of breakfast food, two grades of flour, ice cream, salad oil, sauce, metal polishes, toilet and laundry soaps, deodorant, wood stains, leather dye, ink, and glycerin.

A teaspoonful of peanuts can be made into a pint of milk, while the nuts make a better hard substitute than does cotton-seed oil. Mixed with wheaten flour, peanuts make a palatable and highly nutritious bread; they also make excellent biscuits and cakes.

Strictly speaking, the peanut is not a nut at all; it is what is called a "legume"—akin to the bean and pea. The peanuts grow underground, and the crop is harvested with a plow, there being special machines which clean and hunch the nuts.—London Tit-Bits.

Driving Club Chooses Winston

Fifteen Directors Chosen by Ulster County Riding and Driving Club—They in Turn Elect Officers.

At the adjourned meeting of the Ulster County Riding and Driving Club held Monday evening at the court house, fifteen directors were elected from among the 64 names which had been placed in nomination a week ago. As this was the first annual meeting of the club since its formation, three sets of directors were elected, one set for three years, a second for two years and a third for one year.

Those elected for a term of three years were James O. Winston, John J. Cuneo, Elmer Palen, Roy M. Sutcliffe and Mrs. Seth Staples.

For two years, J. A. Gildersleeve, Harold Clarke, George Whitaker, Delancey M. DeGraff, Mildred Townsley.

For one year, Harry B. Walker, John Roosa, F. B. Mathews, A. H. Hart and Margaret Horbert.

Following the election the newly elected directors convened for the purpose of organization. The following officers were elected:

President, James O. Winston, first vice-president, Roy M. Sutcliffe; second vice-president, Mrs. Seth Staples; third vice-president, John J. Cuneo; treasurer, Elmer Palen; secretary, George Whitaker.

A meeting of the directors will be held Friday evening at the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce at 7:30 o'clock.

Sport Notes

Max Hoff of Philadelphia is manager of 17 pugilists.

A football player, on a muddy field, looks like his sister with her beauty clay on.

The Royal Canadian Golf association has decided to sanction the use of the steel-shafted club.

A New York dry goods store announces that it has 200 college graduates on its pay roll, so football may mean something to education after all, with its yard lines.

Walter French and Charlie Berry, members of the Philadelphia Athletics have signed up with the Pottsville (Pa.) team, member of the National Professional Football league.

Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, R. I., has won the women's national golf championship twice, her first conquest of the title coming in 1922, when she was but nineteen years old.

One of the colleges has installed a course in cheer leading. Does this, we wonder, foreshadow the possibility that some day the student body will rise and give nine runs for father?

Football Debate In Harvard Union

By Telegram to The Freeman. Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 1.—Harvard's war on over-emphasis upon intercollegiate football, which, it is claimed here, robs the game of all pleasure and makes it a grim business, was in full swing today.

Harvard Crimson's plan for interclass football with a three game intercollegiate schedule for a varsity team to top off the season was being widely discussed in and about Harvard Yard.

Meanwhile, plans were completed for a football debate in Harvard Union tomorrow evening. Captain M. A. Cheek of this year's Crimson eleven, H. H. Field, managing editor of the Harvard Crimson and Football publicity agent, and E. J. Netzdorf, vice-president of the Harvard debating union will speak in the affirmative on the question of over-emphasis upon football. The negative will be taken by Major Frank Cavanaugh, Boston College coach, N. S. Howe, three years a Crimson half-back and J. F. Baines, assistant managing editor of the Harvard Crimson.

The football platform of Harvard Crimson, the college daily, in brief follows: Abolish all spring practice; abandon scouting of players and systems; limit football practice to three hours an afternoon; academic standards to govern eligibility of men allowed to play; students who play should be assigned to class teams, at the end of a month's interclass play a varsity squad to be chosen; the varsity to play only three intercollegiate games, say one with Yale and two other universities. Graduates and undergraduates only to be allowed to witness the football contests; public sale of seats to be stopped; other colleges to cooperate in the plan.

The Crimson admits that with football carrying the financial burden of most athletics it will be necessary under the proposed plan to secure an endowment.

Awake for Six Days

A captain of thirty years' sea experience writes: "It was stated in Tit-Bits recently that a world's record for continued wakefulness had been put up by two experimenters, who had remained awake for 115 hours. On one occasion I exceeded this period by 21 hours. I was in charge of cargo loading operations which began on a Monday morning and ended at 8 p. m. the following Saturday. During this time I did not close my eyes, and after five and a half hours' sleep I was called up for further duty. On many occasions since I have put in over one hundred hours of continued wakefulness."

No Chance

The street car was crowded, and an old gentleman with a kindly twinkle in his eye took five-year-old Tommy on his lap.

"This will be better than standing, won't it, my boy?" he suggested.

"Yes," said Tommy, rather reluctantly, for he had enjoyed lurching about the car.

"But you want to be careful that I don't pick your pocket," the old man said, in a whisper.

"Can't," Tom retorted, his voice somewhat muffled. "As soon as I saw you lookin' at me I put my penny in my mouth."

Red Hair From Norse

While the average person of today is a mixture of many types, including Saxon, French and mid-European stocks, the red-haired man or woman is a "throw-back" to remote Norse ancestry, according to a number of British scientists. As the Norsemen had unusually fair skins, these scientists explain that this is particularly true of red-haired persons, and they base their conclusions on the results of crossing thousands of flowers, there being about one in every thousand that reverts to a type closely resembling the one from which the experiment started.

Happy Victim

GRACE VANDERBILT.

For the sixth time Miss Grace Vanderbilt, daughter of Brigadier-General and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, of New York, is reported engaged. Her fiancé now is said to be, Albert H. Ely, Jr., son of a society physician.

May Be Messengers From Other Planets

While the idea of shooting to the moon is often considered by astronomers, the possibility of projectiles ever having been shot to the earth is hardly considered at all. Yet strange carved stones of which there has been no satisfactory explanation have fallen from the sky and been picked up at different times.

In 1897 a small carved stone, covered with ice, fell at Turbes, in France. In 1892 another stone, also carved, dropped in a plantation in Dutch Guiana, while a carved cylinder of stone was reported to have fallen in the United States in 1910.

A possible explanation concerning the stone that fell at Turbes was made at the time by Professor Sodre, who thought that it must have been swept up in a whirlwind in some other part of the world and then dropped at Turbes.

But while such a supposition might be accepted as possible, more convincing evidence is required, for should the scientist's surmise in regard to the whirlwind be correct, it is strange that the stone should have fallen alone—without any of the other things a whirlwind would be bound to collect.

Great English Queen Decidedly No Beauty

The Boston Transcript, in an editorial taking exception to the statement of the director general of the Atlantic City beauty pageant, denies that "most pretty girls have heads as empty as their faces are beautiful," and cites a number of women in history who were brainy as well as lovely to look upon. But it weakens an argument otherwise good by prominently mentioning Queen Elizabeth of England, as one whose "indubitably handsome face was joined with the most extraordinary mental powers." It is strange that the best that anyone has been able to say of Elizabeth's hatched countenance calls into use that word "handsome," which is not the highest adjective applicable to a woman. "Her features," says the Encyclopedia Britannica, "were as handsome as Mary's (Queen of Scots), but she had no fascination." This can mean only that Elizabeth was not a beauty, and no contemporary portrait of her now extant makes her anything but a decidedly homely woman.

Modern Fowls Mere Amateur Egg Layers

The ostrich lays the biggest thing in the egg line at the present age in the world's history. Hard boiled, it weighs three pounds, and would make a good breakfast for a large family.

The kiwi, a New Zealand bird, which itself weighs only about four pounds, lays an egg weighing 14 ounces. But the egg of the extinct aepyornis, which may be found in museums, is as large as 150 average hens' eggs. It was a Madagascan bird that disappeared entirely some centuries ago.

Among volcanic sand in New England an explorer discovered a partially burnt egg that was even bigger. A derby hat would hardly serve as an egg cup for it. The bird that laid it was called the dinorhis, and it is imagined to have been a long like 14 feet.

The Modern Hostess

She was preparing for an elaborate dinner party at which the guest of honor was to be a distinguished Japanese visitor to San Francisco. To get the desired effects she had called in an interior decorator, a son of Nippon, and ordered him to design a flower scheme for the table. "What kind would you like?" he asked. "Oh, anything so long as there are plenty of cherry blossoms, whether you paint them or make them out of paper." "Excuse me to the remark, lady, that cherry blossoms would never do, because this is not the cherry blossom time." "Oh, nobody will notice that." "You, madame, might not notice it, but what if your guests should do so? At least one of them will smile from the inside of his face, and that will make him sad and spoil his dinner." "Oh, anything you like as long as the guests that don't know better will know that it is Japanese."

Two Spinster Immortals

Maria Edgeworth is regarded as the inventor of the novel with a purpose, of which kind "Castle Rackrent," which sent her name into immediate fame in 1800, is a typical example. Miss Edgeworth's influence was enormous. Her success with her Irish novel had much to do with turning Sir Walter Scott to the writing of prose fiction.

Her society was courted by "everybody who was anybody." Byron admired her, and Macaulay was among her enthusiastic worshippers. There is no doubt she is worth reading today, if only for the naturalness and vivacity and character-revealing nature of her dialogue. In this respect she is comparable with Jane Austen, another of the spinster immortals.

Cartridges for Camels

Camels represent the most valuable possession of the people of Abyssinia because they provide means of transportation, without which life would be in jeopardy. In commerce camels are used many times as the equivalent of money. Only under extraordinary circumstances will a man dispose of his camel, as collectors of the zoos of the world have learned. But Doctor Heck found rifle cartridges were eagerly sought, and was able to secure six dramedaries for the Berlin zoo by exchanging 15 cartridges per dramedary, a trade he considered good.—Ohio State Journal.

Women Do the Hard Work

The girls and younger women of Rapa do most of the labor in the taro fields, while the older women attend to the housekeeping. The exemption of the men from agricultural labor allows them more time for fishing, and as a result of their sea experience they are much sought by captains of sailing vessels at Papeete.

The constant demand for Rapa men during the period of nearly a century has led to a considerable independence of women in the island population.—Robert Cushman Murphy, in the National Geographic Magazine.

Had Other Claims to Fame

Queen Rhaetia, who lived in Britain about the middle of the first century, is said to have been the first prominent female thief.
